The Four-Way Test

Is it the TRUTH?	Is it FAIR to all concerned?
Will it build GOODWILL & BETTER FRIENDSHIPS?	Will it be BENEFICIAL to all concerned?

November 21 — Nate Robertson
Former Professional Baseball Player and Co-Owner of the Wingnuts
Topic: From Professional Baseball Player to Owner

A Wichita native who attended Maize High School, Nate Robertson pitched collegiately at Wichita State University. In his final season with the Shockers, the southpaw went 8-0 in 14 starts to help lead WSU to their 13th straight NCAA Tournament appearance.

Following that season, Robertson was selected in the fifth round of the 1999 draft by the Florida Marlins and he began his 16-year professional career that summer. The lefty reached the big leagues for the first time with the Marlins in 2002, making his debut on September 7 of that year against the Pittsburgh Pirates. That offseason, he was traded to the Detroit Tigers where he'd spend his next seven seasons.

In 2006, Robertson had a career year, winning 13 games and helping Detroit make the postseason for the first time since 1987. He won Game 1 of the ALCS against the Oakland Athletics, helping the Tigers sweep their way to their first World Series appearance since 1984. He then took the hill for Game 3 of the World Series against the St. Louis Cardinals. After his final season with Detroit in 2009, Robertson pitched with the Marlins and Philadelphia Phillies in 2010, his final season in the majors. He pitched for several organizations' Triple-A affiliates until 2014, when he retired.

Along with fellow former big-leaguer Adam LaRoche, Robertson organized the Kansas Stars, a team composed of former Major League stars who competed in the 2016 NBC World Series at Lawrence-Dumont Stadium, helping draw record crowds and captivating the city of Wichita. Robertson is currently a co-owner of the Wichita Wingnuts baseball club. Along with co-owners Steve Ruud and Gary Austerman, he helped spearhead the Wingnuts First Annual Community Benefit Concert featuring The Band Perry in April of 2016, and is at the forefront of the planning process for the 2017 edition of the event. He is also a co-owner of the Candle Club restaurant in Wichita.

MEETING NOTES — NOVEMBER 14, 2016

Scott Redler spoke to a packed house on Monday about what the company looks for when evaluating potential franchisees. It's not about the money, but rather the ability and desire to embrace and embody the values that made the company successful.

Norm Arensdorf, Joe Johnson, Dale Allen, Bill Livingston and Bill Cozine were recognized for reaching a new Paul Harris Fellow (PHF) level of lifetime giving. Not pictured are Bill Farha, Martha Housholder, Walter Berry and Jill Frasco.

Pat Hanrahan, Noreen Carrocci, Mike Brown, Don Arnold, Jim Money and Terry Rupp were inducted as first-time Paul Harris Fellows and recognized for their lifetime giving of $1,000 or more.
